WHAT IS AACSB-ACCREDITATION?

AACSB International accreditation represents the highest standard of achievement for business schools worldwide.

ONLY FIVE PERCENT of the world's business schools receive this distinction

AACSB-ACCREDITED

The Cook School has been AACSB-accredited since 1948.

Attaining AACSB accreditation is a rigorous process. Each accreditation standard assesses a school’s ability to perform in critical areas, such as teaching, research, curricula development and student learning.

As a Cook School student you can benefit from the Jesuit MBA Network, a consortium of 30 Jesuit business schools from across the country. We are the only university in St. Louis to offer this type of network transfer. The collective resources of these schools supports students and alumni by making a difference in their education, career and in the world.

One of the top benefits of the Jesuit MBA Network is transferable credits. Transferring credits to another graduate school is often difficult, or not even an option. However, the Jesuit MBA offers unparalleled flexibility for students who might need to transfer.

“Saint Louis University’s MBA program not only met my requirements for flexibility, it exceeded all my expectations. Halfway into the program, I was offered a job in New York City. Through SLU’s Jesuit Network, I was able to seamlessly transfer to Fordham University to complete my MBA without putting my career on hold. My SLU MBA experience was truly memorable and continues to open new doors for me throughout the country.”

“SLU’s MBA program was invaluable to my career development. It allowed me to learn things in 12 months that would have taken years of real-world experience to grasp and understand. The biggest thing I gained from the program was that it moves beyond theory and allows you to not only do, but “do with purpose”. The program is designed to set you up to be light-years ahead of where you were when you started if you allow yourself to fully engage with the curriculum and absorb as much as you can.”

/// ANDREW ARKILLS (MBA ’11)

“Simply put, Saint Louis University changed my life. From the first moment I stepped onto campus I knew what a special place SLU was, and I was eager to be a part of it. Years later I am still a proud member of the SLU community and inspired by the academic achievements and promise the students offer. The faculty gave me so much as a student, and now I have the opportunity to pay it forward to the next generation of aspiring business leaders.”
